ATHENS, April 19.—Fighting against ever-increasing German might on the full length of a 150-mile front, the Greeks and British are holding a firm line and have repelled violent Nazi attacks with immense enemy losses, dispatches from the Thessaly front said today.

Within the last four days, it was asserted, the Germans have lost more men than at any other single period in the 19 months of war while Germany was occupying eight countries.

Front Not Penetrated

"Despite the weight of the attack in Greece, our front nowhere has been penetrated," a British official communique said.

"Heavy attacks by German armored formations and infantry along the whole front have been repulsed with severe losses to the enemy. Many prisoners have been taken."

At this historically crucial moment in Greece's history, King George II assumed active charge of his nation as a result of the death yesterday of Alexander Korizis, the second Greek war premier to die within three months.

King George practically assumed the premiership himself. He entrusted Constantine Codzias, governor of Athens, with the task of forming a new government, probably on military lines, but Codzias will be vice-premier and the King will preside over cabinet meetings.

Indicating that the cabinet would be a military body, it was learned that King George is recalling certain

(International News Service)

LONDON, April 19.—Strong British forces have arrived at Basra in order to open lines of communication through Iraq, it was announced officially today.

Basra lies at the confluence of the Tigris-Euphrates rivers near the northern end of the Persian Gulf.

Arrival of British forces in Basra revealed that the recent political coup there was not directed against the British.

It also indicated that the British expect that the next German move will be southward through Turkey and to the oil fields of Iraq.

"The new Iraq administration is affording full facilities," an official British announcement said.

"It sent a high officer to Basra to welcome and collaborate with the British commander. These actions made a favorable impression on London, leading to hopes that normal relations between the two countries may be restored."

"The population warmly welcomed the troops."

"Britain's action was in accordance with terms of the Anglo-Iraq treaty of alliance."

(International News Service)

TORONTO, Ont., April 19.—Twenty-eight German prisoners of war—soldiers, sailors and aviators—escaped from a Lake Superior internment camp early today.

The prisoners burrowed a tunnel under the barricade and vanished into the wild bush country without raising an alarm. It was the first mass escape since Canada entered the war.

Exact location of the prison camp was not revealed but it was in an isolated section. Police and army guards are attempting to block the roads in the vicinity of the camp.

The camp from which the men escaped is the same one in which a mysterious fire started a few days ago and it was believed the Nazis set the fire to screen their activity in digging the tunnel.

Residents of the area have been warned to use any force necessary "to hold any escaped prisoner found" until military aid can arrive.

With an attendance of contestants that exceeds the estimated 5,000 by about 600, the state contests of the Pennsylvania Forensic and Music League swung into the second and final day, today. Today's contests see the larger groups competing, among them the Class A choruses, orchestras, and bands.

Late Friday night and early today the influx continued and by ten o'clock this morning special buses were rolling up to the senior high school with uniformed bands ready to pit their skill against the bands of other schools in their classes.

Conditions Ideal

New Castle has done a real job in the preparations and facilities for the contests, according to C. Stanton Belfour, director of the events. As a tribute to the work of Mrs. Marjorie Rhodes Nelson, who has been the executive chairman for the local arrangements, Mr. Belfour presented her with a bouquet of flowers early this afternoon and in the presentation bespoke his own appreciation of a job well done as well as the appreciation of the state organization.

Thus far the honors in the contests have been well divided geographically. Schools from down along the "main line" near Philadelphia have won, schools in the upper tiers of counties bordering the New York state line have won their share and the western end of the state is represented.

The one top honor that New Castle is shooting for is the Class A orchestra. The winner of this contest wins a leg on a handsome Discovery of the body of a drowned woman in the waters of the Shenango river, just below North street, was made this morning about 7:45 o'clock, by several boys who were on their way up the river bank on a fishing expedition. City police were notified and removed the body from the water, after which it was taken to Zehner's funeral home on North Beaver street, awaiting identification, which had not been made at two o'clock this afternoon.

The boys reported their discovery to a colored man, who ran to the P and L E station nearby and asked Agent T. Earl Dukes to notify city police. Officers Herman Richards, Harry Reese and Robert Hanna responded and recovered the body, after which Coroner T. P. Nugent took charge.

Description Of Woman.

The woman is described as being apparently between 35 and 40 years of age, with light brown bobbed hair, about 5 feet one or two inches in height, and weighing around 130 pounds. She wore a blue dress with red figures, in the form of rosettes and squares, red patent leather belt, a spring coat, mixed gray and brown, brown stockings and black shoes. She had evidently been married as she wore a plain, narrow, wedding ring, and on the third finger of the right hand, a plain gold signet ring, with no initial on it. Her hair did not give evidence of having been waved recently, and she wore a single bobby pin in the front and on the left side.

Her clothing was not of expensive material, indicating that she came from a rather humble strata of life. It is believed that the body had not been in the water any considerable length of time. It was found face downward, lodged in some brush near the bank. It is not believed that it could have floated very far, as the water is low due to lack of rainfall in the district recently.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Secretary of Labor Perkins today requested northern coal operators to reopen their mines on Tuesday, and also urged the CIO United Mine Workers and southern coal operators to resume wage negotiations at once.

Miss Perkins made this request in identical telegrams sent to John L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W., and Charles O'Neill, head of the northern operators. Copies of the telegrams also were sent to L. Ebersole Gaines, chairman of the southern operators organization.

Miss Perkins telegraphed them that "it is in the public interest as well as the public safety that there be an immediate resumption of mining operations in those mines" which have settled their wage dispute with the mine workers union. This embraces all the northern mines which came to terms with the UMW in New York.

The southern operators are willing to conduct independent negotiations with the mine workers union in Washington.

BERLIN, April 19.—German divisions sweeping rapidly southward in a series of violent battles today planted the Swastika on the snow-capped peak of Mount Olympus and captured the key transportation center of Larissa, 30 miles south of the mythological home of the Gods, the Nazi GHQ announced.

With German legions rushing through mountain passes on either side of Mt. Olympus, according to the supreme command, and with the Anglo-Greek armies reported in "full retreat," Greek capitulation and an armistice within a few days were predicted.

An air of expectancy in Wilhelmstrasse even foreshadowed such rapid developments that a major announcement on Chancellor Hitler's 52nd birthday tomorrow, it was said, "would not be surprising."

Hitler himself has gone to the front to spend his birthday, as usual, with his troops and personally to direct the final blows against the British and Greeks.

The Allied armies are rushing southward precipitately in a desperate endeavor to escape the deadly snap of the German pincers now being thrust deep into the level reaches of the Thessalonian valley, military authorities here said.

Pittsburgh "Blackout" Only Partial

First Blackout Test Last Night

Thousands Of Lights Go Out
But Many Thousands
Also Stay On

OBSERVATIONS FROM PLANE ARE GIVEN

By WILLIAM THEIS
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, April 19.—Industrial Pittsburgh looked back on its first test "blackout" today, convinced that entirely too much light was shed on the subject.

Thousands of city lights winked out in the Metropolitan area rimmed by the rivers forming the historic "point" last night—but other thousands stayed on.

For five minutes—from 10:10 until 10:15 p. m.—the city darkened its doors.

Bridge Lights Burn

But many building proprietors and home owners forgot their windows—and the county of Allegheny declined to douse the lights on its bridges.

Through it all six army observation planes from the 103rd and 104th squadrons and two civilian ships dived noisily overhead. As simulated enemy "raiders" they had the difficulty of finding key landmarks of this prime industrial target.

Motorists who flocked to the downtown section and surrounding hillsides pulled their cars to the curb and trimmed to parking lights. Horns honked and a few sirens wailed. A handful of searchlights flicked upward into the starry sky, occasionally picking out a zooming plane.

Watches From Plane

From a transport plane circling at 3500 feet over the "Golden Triangle," this correspondent watched as the "zero hour" came and blocks of city streets fell under a blanket of partial darkness.

The city's spangled robe suddenly became a patchwork of shadows, as if some reflecting light had merely shifted. Out on the edges of this picture, blocks of point light remained aglow—the neighboring boroughs who failed to join in the voluntary blackout.

Pittsburgh's bridges, tell-tale landmarks for a "raiding" pilot, were dazzling in their brilliance. Surrounding sections were dimmed, some residential areas were literally "black-outed."

On the Grant building, Pittsburgh's second tallest structure, the red Neon beacon light continued to spell out "Pittsburgh" in code. Many store front signs, automatically set to burn all night, couldn't be turned off.

"We didn't hide Pittsburgh," said Mayor Cornelius D. Scully, "but the people on the ground probably learned a lot. If we try again, it should be twice as good."

ATHENS REPORTS

high staff officers for consultation. All information from the front pictures violent fighting unprecedented in the whole war—even in the Polish and French campaigns.

While the Germans were reported disregarding terrific losses and throwing the entire weight of their available war machine against the Allied line, the defense positions of the British and Greeks, it was said, are holding fast at all points.

Greatest pressure was reported from Sarandapora Pass, southwest of Mount Olympus, where violence of the German attack was termed "indiscretable."

Front Of 150 Miles

The front, according to the Allies, now runs 150 miles from the Mt. Olympus region to the Chimeria area in Albania.

Latest information from the front said the situation of the Allies was improving all along the line. German detachments have suffered terrific casualties in bitter hand-to-hand fighting during the past 12 hours, these advisers said.

Everywhere, it was claimed, the Germans have been held back and their attacks repulsed.

British and Greek warriors inflicted heavy losses on Nazi mechanized and non-mechanized units, particularly around Mt. Olympus on the right wing of the defense line, military advisers said.

In this sector, German forces attempted to infiltrate through passes in the Olympus mountain chain but were reported to have been "annihilated by artillery fire."

As a result, it was stated, the Nazi soldiers had to abandon their vehicles and engage in close-quarter fighting.

As a result of this bloody hand-to-hand battle, it was stated, the field of combat was "dotted with piles of German corpses."

The defense line, it was claimed, was holding up against German assaults along three major battle sectors.

General Secretary Robert L. Meermans of the New Castle Y. M. C. A. was home today from a Washington conference to which he was summoned by government leaders to discuss a "plan of action" for the newly-announced United Service Organizations, Inc., a group which will strive to provide America's growing armed forces with the best influences of their former homes and communities.

Uncle Sam will build 300 additional centers and the United Service Organizations, in June will open a nation-wide drive for $10,765,000 to operate them for a year.

Meermans was called by telegraph by Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator and coordinator of all health, welfare and related defense activities.

Forty-eight states sent 700 to hear Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of Navy Knox and Chief of Staff Marshall speak in Willard hotel. McNutt read President Roosevelt's own message.

Meermans said today: "I was asked to contact local representatives of the organizations backing the U. S. O. and to prepare plans for a financial campaign here this summer. No drive goals have been suggested, nor have any conferences been held. I expect to call a meeting early next week."

U. S. O. include the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., National Catholic Community Service, Salvation Army, Jewish Welfare Board and the National Travelers' Aid Association.

Mr. Meermans accompanied her husband to the capital.

BERLIN CLAIMS
KEY CENTER OF

more has received order to re-embark, and the Allied situation at the front was described by the Germans as "hopeless."

Hitler, it was learned, has issued a special order to the German armies and Luftwaffe to restrict attacks to purely military objectives in Greece. Under all circumstances, the Nazis were told, they must spare every historic and cultural site such as the Acropolis.

At the same time reassurances of an early amnesty for all Greek prisoners of war was issued.

"Shadow of Doom"

On the other hand, German military authorities said the swastika on Olympus "casts the shadow of doom southward for the British, whose annihilation is certain when the Greeks collapse."

Bitter fighting, however, continues, the Germans confirmed. In an apparent attempt to frustrate an attempt by the British to dodge a Greek Dunkerque, the Luftwaffe bombed British transport vessels at the port of Volos.

Larissa, now in German hands, is on the arterial rail line reaching southward to Athens. Southeastward from Larissa a line runs to Volos, believed to be the main embankment port of the B. E. F.

Southeast of Larissa, a new branch line extends northwest to Trikala and Kalabaka, for which a major battle now is in progress.

Capture of Kalabaka, however, now is of less importance since the fall of Larissa gives the German mechanized divisions a clear sweep of flat terrain, since the Olympian mountains now have been left far behind.

Details Not Revealed

German authorities declared details of the great battle raging in Greece would not be revealed until the most important strategic gains have been completed.

But it was announced officially, nevertheless, that Stuka dive-bombers were pounding strong but retreating enemy forces and columns near the strategic Greek city of Larissa and also near Pharsala.

Other Anglo-Greek columns were being dive-bombed on the highways between Yanina and Arta, on the western flank of the battle front, the announcement said.

Other Stukas, the high command said, continued their attacks on enemy shipping in the Aegean Sea, and coastline, destroying merchant vessels totalling 29,000 tons at Chalcis harbor and severely damaging another 8,000-ton vessel.

German infantry and panzer divisions kept pounding at the Anglo-Greek defense line after smashing deep into the plain of Thessaly.

is voted, non-defense expenditures of the government will rise to the highest level in history at a time when they should be reduced," said Byrd.

In his compilation he included normal army and navy expenditures but omitted all of the new defense program.

"It is little short of an outrage to ask taxpayers to assume this grievous tax burden without at the same time drastically reducing non-defense expenditures."

Rep. Disney (D) Okla., also demanded strict economy. He suggested that government publicity bureaus could be abolished at a saving of $40,000,000 annually. Another $100,000,000 could be saved in the National Youth Administration and $200,000,000 in the Civilian Conservation Corps, he said.

In Secret Session.

The treasury's tax proposals, it was announced, will be laid before the house ways and means committee on Monday in secret session. Public hearings may open next Thursday.

Despite refusal of the treasury to bare details, members of congress learned that tremendous increases in income, corporation, gift, estate and similar taxes are planned, together with a boost in present excise taxes and addition on many new ones.

The present defense tax of 10 percent may be boosted to 40 percent. One member of congress said that the treasury plan—including lowering of exemptions, increase of normal and surtaxes and the defense taxes—would boost the income tax of the man now paying $11 to $70 a year.

The program, it was estimated, would result in an income tax rate of at least 10 percent in the lower brackets. One report was that the normal tax rate would only be boosted from four to six percent, but that the surtax rate, which now goes on after $4,000 income, would begin almost simultaneously with the normal tax.

Another proposal being discussed was the so-called Glass plan of requiring inclusion of interest on tax-exempt bonds in calculating income tax. This method, an indirect way of nullifying tax exemption laws, is regarded by congressional lawyers as constitutional.

Among new excise taxes which may be recommended are: medicinal preparations, motion picture films, soft drinks, transfers of life insurance, new varieties of stamp taxes, railroad, steamship and airplane tickets, vending machines, and all kinds of luxury goods.

CHARRED BONES

Her family, because of her regular habits, insisted she was either a victim of amnesia or violence when she failed to return home.

Put Body In Furnace

Detectives said the janitor, Albert B. Lukens, had confessed putting the body in the furnace Saturday afternoon. Lukens assertedly admitted trying to kiss the girl and that they struggled.

Lukens, married and the father of three children, had been janitor at the church a little more than a year. The girl's bones were found after an intensive search all week for clues.

A substitute music teacher in the Akron school system, Miss Zwicker, one of eight children, was "all wrapped up in her music," police said. She was a graduate of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y.

Admits Cremation

The church janitor calmly told police today that he had cremated the dead or unconscious body of pretty Ruth Zwicker, 24-year-old pianist, in the furnace of North Hill Methodist church a few hours before services last Easter morning.

According to Detective Chief Vern E. Cross the janitor, Albert Lukens, said he wasn't sure the girl was dead when he shoved her body into the blazing heating plant after she had fallen and struck her head against a piano in the church while resisting his advances.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Potatoes are good food and contain valuable ingredients. Anti-scurvy vitamin C is found in potatoes.

Vitamin C is easily destroyed or lost in the cooking of potatoes. Potatoes should be cooked in their skins to preserve this vitamin.

Food value is wasted if potatoes are pared and cut in small pieces. Long soaking in water robs potatoes of much of their food value.

Parings should be thin, for minerals lie close under the skin. Mealy potatoes should be used for baking and mashing.

Waxy potatoes are suitable in salads and for cleaning. Clear, uniform-sized potatoes are the best for household use.

They should be free from cuts, decayed spots and have few shallow eyes.

Potatoes are high in food value in relation to their cost.

SHOULD BE SENT HOME

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL, who has been having troubles of his own on this question, asks congress to amend the draft law so that aliens who have taken out first papers and are now subject to military service may withdraw the applications for citizenship and thereby dodge the draft.

Mr. Hull says that a number of foreign governments are protesting vigorously against applying the selective service law to their nationals in this country, even though they have signified an intention to become citizens eventually.

Well and good. The technical diplomatic difficulties may be sufficiently important to make the proposed change desirable. But let congress see to it that these two-timing half-citizens don't get away with the rest of it, warns the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Any amendment intended to soothe the minds of foreign statesmen should include a provision that if an alien with first papers withdraws them he becomes instantly and automatically subject to deportation to his own country. His cancellation of his citizenship application for such a reason as is here indicated would demonstrate clearly that he is not the kind of citizen we want.

There would be something distinctly indecent in drafting full fledged citizens and leaving alien quitters in a fine strategic position to snap up the jobs of the men in the service.

RELIEF STILL PROBLEM

With a vast increase in national employment, until the total is higher than it was in 1929, people are surprised to find that the problem of unemployment relief is not ended. One of the large cities, which had 105,000 families receiving public aid in 1938, still has 40,000 requiring such aid.

Several reasons are given. One is that we have a larger population than we had a dozen years ago. Another is that we have developed more sensitive standards about responsibility for the needy. Another, that we have passed on to our local, state and national governments a lot of responsibility that used to be left for private benevolence. Still another, that we keep more complete statistics now about such things. And finally, there has been a growing tendency for the weaker members of our society to demand more relief than they used to.

Some authorities expect that present public aid will continue to shrink, in this industrial boom period, until it is only about half what it is today. That will be the irreducible minimum, about one-fifth of what it was at the peak. But it will rise again when the war boom ends—how far, nobody can tell.

FIRE LOSS EQUALS COST OF 45 CRUISERS

W. E. Mallahieu, general manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, recently gave some startling facts to illustrate the drain fire causes on this country.

The total amount of fire losses in the United States during 1940, he said, would have purchased 45 cruisers for the Navy. Further, he added, "The total of the losses in three such years as that of 1940 would have paid for the entire maintenance of the Navy last year—and there would have been enough left over to buy a heavy cruiser. This should cause every American to stop and think of his own individual responsibility in the matter of fire prevention, particularly at this critical time, when the country is straining every effort toward adequate national defense. Such tremendous losses are especially deplorable in view of the fact that most fires are the result of carelessness and could be prevented."

This year the National Board is celebrating its 75th anniversary, and its slogan is, "National Defense Through Fire Defense." That is a good slogan for every person—all can help. It is not enough to fight fire in defense factories and army camps and navy yards. Every home fire that is prevented, means that resources are conserved. It means that men and materials need not be diverted from vital defense work. It means that our communities can give all their energies to making us stronger, not to replacing something which has been needlessly destroyed. It means that greater and faster progress is made toward consummating the greatest industrial production in our history.

The National Board speaks for the nation when it asks all to cooperate in a fire prevention campaign that will get results. Remember that in a single year fire destroyed values great enough to have built 45 costly naval cruisers. That should not happen here.

THIRTEENTH TO GO

Now Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia, joins Europe's list of stricken cities. It is the thirteenth European capital to be occupied by German troops since the occupation of Austria in 1938. The list comprises Vienna, Prague, Warsaw, Copenhagen, Oslo, The Hague, Luxembourg, Brussels, Paris, Budapest, Bucharest and Sofia.

And now Belgrade, from which German bombers have blasted most all signs of life. Water, gas and electric services gone, its railroad station a shell, its opera house in ruins, its death toll put at 3,000—Belgrade lies in ruins. With the exception of Warsaw, it seems to have suffered a more terrible fate than the other capital victims of Nazi barbarism.

Not all capitals that the Nazis have occupied have been bombed. Some fell before the more odious assaults of treason, of gradual infiltration, of threats, internal disorganization and weakness. Into one or another of these categories might be put Vienna, Budapest, Bucharest and Sofia. Prague was left to its fate when Britain and France found it impossible to defend Czechoslovakia in 1938. Copenhagen capitulated under a threat of superior German force. Luxembourg had no choice. Oslo, The Hague, Brussels and Paris were bombed, but not to the extent of some other capitals and of some cities not capitals at all.

One of the most terrible bombing was that of Rotterdam, where a square mile was laid waste within the space of a few hours. Deaths there have been estimated as high as 20,000. But the most persistent and heart-rending bombings have been those of the cities of Britain. In the case of other capitals death and devastation were at least swift and to that extent merciful.

But as capital after capital falls, London holds out. Her civilian casualties have been large, the material damage tremendous, the loss of historic buildings incalculable. It is in the hope that this fearful punishment cannot vanquish Britain that the hopes of the thirteen fallen capitals lie.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

PARENT IN ROLE OF PROSECUTOR

In the child of three or sixteen, you can't prevent deception and promote integrity and cooperation by holding court and playing prosecuting attorney. Keep your eyes open and protect your child from temptations he cannot withstand, but don't be a detective. Don't put your child on the witness stand forcing him to testify against himself, when you suspect that he has erred.

Like most other conscientious parents, those in the following instance have made their little child grow more dishonest and deceptive while they were trying their best to lead him to be honest and truthful. Parents want the child to learn early that deceit doesn't pay and that it brings unhappiness to the deceiver, and they don't get far if they center their attention on catching and punishing him when he lies. This will only make him worse. If a mother compels her child to confess one time, she has prepared him to lie more skillfully and steal more successfully the next.

The Letter

"Our five-year-old boy has been taking money out of his Dad's trousers. When he is caught he declares persistently that he found it, or that baby took it and he took it away from her to give to Dad."

"Yesterday I left him alone in the house for about ten minutes. When I came back he had taken two eggs out of the refrigerator and broken them against the house outside. . . . Today I asked him if he had broken the eggs and opened the refrigerator. He admitted reluctantly that he had. When I came in yesterday I saw the fresh eggs running down the house and asked where they had come from. He told me some boys came by and threw them there. . . ."

The Doctor's Advice

Parents need to build up a relationship with a child which will make him want to do right. Then he will have pride in doing right because he feels worthy and loved. Therefore, I advised the mother, who wrote the above, not to hold court with her child. She should put emphasis on keeping him from temptations to deceive and on building up his good traits and showing him more approval, love and affection when he does right, especially since he has a baby sister who, he might suppose, is loved more than he is. Dad, of course, should do likewise.

"To punish or not to punish: when and how" is one of a series of pamphlets on the baby and young child I used to give to preschool parents. A folder about these pamphlets may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Do you advise giving the tot as early as two or three a hammer, soft wood and nails? Suppose the child endangers another child or the furniture with these things?

A. Supervise the youngster while he has them in a regular place, until he is able to be entrusted with them alone. Do likewise when at four or five he is given a saw and other tools.

Q. How may a parent locate a reputable psychiatrist, on suspecting mental illness in another member of the family?

A. By telephoning or writing the city or county Medical Association. Also the family doctor should be able to name a competent psychiatrist.

What Noted People Say

(International News Service)
BUFFALO, N. Y.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt contends that at the end of the present war the United States must accept responsibility to prevent a recurrence 20 years later: "We didn't accept that responsibility 20 years ago. And it doesn't seem to have worked out so well, does it? So we certainly ought not repeat that mistake again."

WASHINGTON—Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson sounds a warning: "The chief danger that this nation faces today is that our spiritual rearmament has not kept pace with our physical rearmament."

COLUMBIA, Mo.—Maude Adams, dean of American actresses, believes peace throughout the world can be obtained if all men and women of goodwill hand together: "I am certain that we men and women of good will outnumber the warminded many times over. If we can somehow join our wishes and our wills we can crush that little minority aside."

CHICAGO—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh reveals the basis for his isolationist view: "I believe this war was lost by England and France even before it was declared, and that it is not within our power in America today to win the war for England even though we throw the entire resources of our nation into the conflict."

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 6:42. Sun rises tomorrow 5:16.

The real green onions are the winter onions, and they are fine this time of the year. However, those who eat them had better eat them when they don't meet people.

Many people who spend the winter in some southern resort no sooner get back until they figure on going to spend the summer at some cool place.

To the philosopher, nearly every unpleasant situation might be worse.

A sales tax is the one everybody has to pay if they spend money. Even the bum who bums has to pay a tax when he spends the money he bums. The sales tax will have to come some day.

TAKING THE HINT

Judge (releasing prisoner): And in the future, young man, keep out of bad company.
Prisoner: Thank you, your honor. And you won't see me here again.

In January President Roosevelt declared that every government expense not directly connected with defense must be pared to the bone. The bone has had some slices taken off already.

Nature alone stays right side up in an upside down world.

We met a young fellow the other day and he asked us if we knew of a good boarding house.

"Though you were well-established in a place," we said. "Last time we saw you it seems you said the food was fine."

"Yes, I was there a month and the food was all right," he admitted. "But when I found there was no bath tub I simply had to leave."

"If your eyesight is poor," says a doctor "eat a carrot." Please, Doctor, there ought to be some other remedy, something equally as good.

TRUE HOSPITALITY

Once a year we print the story about the eastern young woman who got off the bus in a Texas town, and was struggling with a cup of hot coffee at the lunch counter before returning her journey. A couple of stools away a native Texan wearing a three-gallon hat, noted her plight.

"Here, ma'am," he offered solicitously, "take my cup of coffee. It's already sauced and blowed."

A big hat on a gal in a public place is not often so bad, but when she has a foot or so of hair sticking out on both sides of it that is something to block the view of a crowd of people back of her.

The motorcycle is doing it's damage these days in many places. It seems that some of them go so fast they only injure the people they hit.

We were in a drug store the other day when a learned-looking man came in.

"These professors are so absent-minded," the clerk told us. "Always forgetting how to pronounce aspirin."

Good Taste

By W. E. Patent Office

"My husband has just purchased a store in this village, strange to me, to which we have just moved from distant town. He continually nags me about how necessary it is to his business for me to become a good mixer among all I meet here at church and elsewhere. Do you think that necessary when I don't feel naturally inclined to be super-friendly toward people? It isn't that I am aloof or snobbish, but just naturally reserved and undemonstrative."—Stella.

Answer: Yes, it is necessary for you to become a good mixer, if you want your husband to prosper and if you wish to share in the fruits of his prosperity. Begin today and discipline yourself to act as if you really regard everyone you meet as fully worth your friendly interest. People who are demonstrative are usually well-liked. Don't be afraid to show enthusiastic welcome, especially to visiting relatives and old friends. Show them the affection that you really feel at seeing them.

Greet all new acquaintances in your new village as though they already are your friends. You will be unable to make immediately friends of absolutely all of them but you can lay a lasting foundation by making all of them feel that you have a friendly attitude toward them. That attitude of mind will not only increase your husband's business but will, in the long run, make you happier and more comfortable in your contacts. Your happiness will increase in proportion to your number of friends. And there is no limit to their numbers once you cultivate the habit of collecting them. It will prove more profitable than collecting old pewter, or stamps or first editions, because your acquisitions will be continually paying you back.

Question: I am soon to be best man and would like to know just what is required of men as to duties, gift and entertainment for the groom. Must I give him his bachelor dinner?—B. M.

Answer: On the wedding day, you must be at the bridegroom's house early, check up on the wedding ring and have it safely in your pocket, escort the groom to the place of his marriage a full quarter of an hour before the ceremony begins. After arriving there, you must take charge of the groom's hat, stick and coat, and place them where they will be at hand when he needs them after the ceremony. You must pay the clergyman his fee (provided by the groom) sealed in an envelope. You must escort the maid-of-honor to the bride's home or wherever the reception will take place.

You must, of course, send the bride a gift. Even though you are the groom's friend, the gift goes to the bride. You may entertain for the bride and groom if you wish, but you need not. The groom should give his own bachelor dinner.

Two Pullman porters discussing the hottest places they had visited. Mose: "Hab you ebber been in San Diego, California?" George: "Nope."

Mose: "I saw it so hot dere one day dat de ostriches laid soft boiled eggs." George: "Dat nuttin; hab you ebber been in de Panhandle ob Texas?" Mose: "Nope."

George: "I saw a starved kiote dere a-chasin a jack rabbit and it was so hot dey was bobe walkin'."

These days if "nuts" isn't the right answer a lot of people give up.

Mrs. Hum says as soon as Hi had taught a new Shepherd dog to drive the cows home, he tried to teach it to milk.

Remedy at Last.

Do you wish to embarrass a saxophone player? All you have to do is bite into half a lemon within his view. As soon as he sees the reaction of your facial muscles, he will begin to feel "sour" himself and unless he immediately overcomes the resultant contraction of his own muscles, he will be unable to blow into his instrument for some minutes.

Ignorance is bliss. If our people knew their danger, and knew how their safety is sacrificed to profits, there would be lynchings.

Makes Blanket Apology For Slips
Stewart Recalls Recent Fumbles
Cigaretts And Censorship On List

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Anybody liable to make an accidental misstatement occasionally and when the misinformant is called to account for it, it's only honest and manly in him to admit that he was wrong and apologize. It seems I've fallen into error a few times recently, so I'll sum all these mistakes up herewith and express my regrets for 'em.

To begin with, there's the matter of cigarettes as a military necessity. Defense and Democracy-Aid Manager Bill Knudsen's office has what's called a priorities division. Its function is to give priority to the manufacture and shipment of stuff that's vital to our Selected Service's martial equipment and to the similar equipment of the fighting democracies overseas—that is to say, priority over other junk that isn't so urgently needed.

Well, I inadvertently remarked that I could imagine the priorities division as giving priority to armament essentials over cigarettes, on the ground that cigs aren't a military necessity.

Now I have before me a letter from the publicity director of one of the country's biggest cigarette-making companies, informing me that cigarettes, are, too, a military necessity. He tells me that an addict can't fight worth a cent without an adequate supply of fags—indeed, priority ought to be given to 'em over guns and ammunition.

Oked. I regret the error. Cigarettes are a military necessity.

Another thing.

Censorship

Lately I was discussing the possibility of the creation of some sort of a government censorship in the present emergency. Today, my attention's directed to the circumstance that Lowell Mellett, one of President Roosevelt's executive assistants "with a passion for anonymity," testifying before a congressional committee, deposed that no censorship's even contemplated. Since Lowell has been most frequently mentioned as the possible censor, he ought to know.

However, I wasn't quite as far wrong on the censorship subject as I was on the subject of cigarettes. I knew all along, and said so, that the censorship, if established, won't be officially described as a censorship—it will be entitled a bureau of public information.

Nevertheless, a rose under the name of a bureau of public information will smell sweeter than one under the name of a censors office. Accordingly, I regret that remark, too.

And who'd have imagined that I had a Falkland Islander among my readers?

I have, though, and he represents a statement I made to the effect that the Argentine republic claims the archipelago, in the South Atlantic, just off the Argentine coast, and held at present as an English possession.

The islands were Spanish once and when the Argentines won their independence from Spain, they reckoned that the group, being right in their maritime doorway, belonged to them. The English, however, in 1791, grabbed 'em, and the Argentines have been sore about it ever since. The other day it was suggested in congress at Buenos Aires that, if the democracies want Argentina to like 'em, they'd better use their influence with Britain to hand the isles over to the republic that has been yowling for 'em for so many years.

Bright Idea?

It struck me as a bright idea, for Argentina's grouch over those isles has made her rather unresponsive, during generations, to British overtures—and now to our good neighborliness, since Uncle Sam and John Bull are in such close cahoots. The Falklands aren't much of a possession. My dope was that they'd be a moderate price to pay for Argentine good will, and I said as much.

Still, I can see why the Falklanders shy away from the notion. They're mostly Scots, who don't want to be South Americanized.

But what I didn't anticipate was that any Falklander would ever see my recommendation. It's something like discovering that I've got an Eskimo reader or a Hottentot.

Being a Falklander, my correspondent (his name's Douglas) knows a lot more Falkland history than I do. He agrees that the islands belonged to Spain, but contends that the Spanish title to 'em wasn't very good, an English navigator having discovered 'em originally, though it wasn't until after Spain's time that they were Britishly colonized.

Well, I regret that I hurt the Falklanders' feelings, too.

The World and the Mud Puddles

JUST BUREAUCRACY

To show to what extent the evils of Bureaucracy may go, attention has been called to the Amendment of 1939 to the Federal Social Security Act which requires the States to "provide safeguards which restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning applicants and recipients" for old-age assistance "to purposes directly connected with the administration" of such assistance. A Bill filed in the general court would make our general welfare records confidential and close them against public examination. Its general purpose is that the Department of Public Welfare shall have power

A Dismaying Choice

WASHINGTON, April 19. REACTION to the designation by the President of his friend Harry Hopkins to supervise and control the seven-billion-dollar lend-lease program is good in only one group: to wit, that of the extreme New Dealers, who from the beginning have insisted that the defense effort should be in the hands of New Dealers and not businessmen.

NOW they have their wish and they are greatly rejoiced. But no one else is. On the contrary, inside the administration, as well as outside, feelings have been stirred which range all the way from mild discouragement to intense indignation. Certainly it is not a selection calculated to inspire the country with confidence either in the competency or the disinterestedness with which this vital task will be administered.

THE most common comment in Washington is that if it had been known in advance that Mr. Roosevelt intended to put Mr. Hopkins in charge of the expenditure of this seven billions the lend-lease bill would not have been passed. There seems more than a little justification for that statement. It is, in fact, difficult to understand how the President could believe that Mr. Hopkins is physically or mentally up to this job, or why he should have selected him, except on the theory that he intends to keep power wholly in his own hands and permit no one else to make any important decision.

TO those anxious that in this great effort the minimum of time, energy and money shall be wasted, the Hopkins assignment is regarded as perhaps the most serious mistake yet made since our defense effort began. From no matter what angle it is viewed, it seems deplorable. Obviously, if Mr. Roosevelt intends to use Mr. Hopkins largely in order to direct the lend-lease operations himself, an additional burden will be imposed upon the President which he should not carry and which no human being could carry without faltering.

ON the other hand, if his purpose is to make Mr. Hopkins the real boss, then the situation is indeed frightening. No unprejudiced person can look at Mr. Hopkins (this has nothing to do with his health) and believe he measures up to the job. No informed man can reverse his opinion.

The services at 7:30 a. m. and 11 a. m. in Trinity church are purposely planned to give any who were unable to receive their Easter communions the opportunity to do so, and to give all others the chance to continue the joy of the feast in their worship. Easter hymns will be sung and the senior choir will repeat the special program of festival music under the direction of Miss Isabel T. Johnson at the 11 o'clock service.

Sick persons and shut-ins wishing the holy communion may receive it after the service at the church on the Feast of St. Mark the Evangelist, Friday, April 25, and should notify the Rev. Philip C. Pearson of their desire.

The Great Game Of Politics

record, either before 1932 or since, and consider him equipped by training, experience, ability or physique for so huge a responsibility. It is not surprising that there should be widespread perturbation over the President's act. Here is a job which clearly calls for a strong, competent, experienced man. He has selected a weak, inexperienced man, whose chief claim to fame is that as W. P. A. administrator he wasted more money than any other public official in history and permitted an agency for the relief of human misery to become saturated with politics to the point of a national scandal. Mr. Roosevelt has said that the first thing is to win this war, and the idea of the lease-lend bill was to do exactly that. It is not an unfair statement to say that it would occur to few besides the President that Mr. Hopkins is the kind of man with whom to win a war.

SIMULTANEOUSLY with the announcement of the Hopkins selection, Mr. Roosevelt liquidated the old liaison committee, headed by Mr. Morgenthau, which had been coordinating foreign and domestic military purchasing since late in 1939. The authorized statement was made that it was at Mr. Morgenthau's own suggestion that his committee was dissolved. This statement was partly to justify the Hopkins appointment and partly to save the face of the long-suffering Mr. Morgenthau. The truth, as known to his friends, is that Mr. Morgenthau was very badly upset when he learned what had been done.

HE takes this as he has taken a good many other kicks in the pants—and with meekness untaught since Moses. Whatever his inner sense of injury, when once the order falls from the Roosevelt tongue, he not only acquiesces but insists that that was what he really believed all the time. Upon more than one occasion, when Mr. Roosevelt has publicly pulled the props from under him, Mr. Morgenthau, as soon as he could get his breath, has rushed up on the stage to cheer. He has not done exactly that this time, but that the suggestion of the liquidation of his own committee came from him is enough to make those who know the facts laugh—if the situation were not too grave for laughter.

DISMAYED as many people here are, at the Hopkins selection, apparently there is nothing that can be done about it. Those who want to stand with the President dare not criticize the appointment or express their apprehensions. It is the sort of criticism which he would take as a personal reflection. And, anyhow, the disposition among his satellites is to stamp any criticism as unpatriotic. So they take it—this Hopkins appointment—without public protest, though nearly everybody, except the little "inner circle" White House clique, knows it is an indefensible selection, which had Congress believed likely before action on the lend-lease bill might have blocked that bill.

THE best that can be hoped is that the cocky Mr. Hopkins, with his cheap wisecracks and his so-called "central staff," will not last long. While very little progress can be expected. In justification of his appointment, nothing is thinner than the argument that he is the logical selection because of the warmth of his reception in England by Winston Churchill, who practically made him a member of his family after his arrival as the personal representative of Mr. Roosevelt. If, labeling him his "most intimate friend," Mr. Roosevelt instead had sent over the White House cook or his Hyde Park gardener, Mr. Churchill's welcome would have been just as warm.

More Volunteer Workers Sought

Lawrence County Chapter Seeks More Assistance In Defense Work

APPEAL IS MADE
BY MRS. ELLIOTT

With the American Red Cross nationally appealing for more volunteers, Mrs. John E. Elliott, chairman of all Volunteer Services of the Lawrence County Chapter issues an urgent appeal for local volunteers to carry on the defense program here.

"Four of our special volunteer courses are now being expanded in order we may be properly prepared to meet an emergency," Mrs. Elliott stated.

"We have our Home Service, the charter obligation of every Chapter. On this service we safeguard the welfare of the homes of those called to military service. We assist the veterans' families and the Peace time man. One work is increasing and volunteers for certain office duties are much needed.

"We have our Motor Corps, women under Mrs. John W. McIlwraith who volunteer their cars and time to the Chapter. These women are very busy transporting supplies, assisting Miss Fulton in Home Service calls. With the Defense program increasing more volunteers must be called upon. We want women who have their own car or a car for their use and who have a college education who can devote much time to the increasing demands made on this service.

"Our Staff Assistance Volunteers, Mrs. James Smith, Jr., Chairman, are advised on the Chapter programs and in any emergency will be called upon to function in any program of the Chapter. Many more women should be so trained. A series of lectures will be given a new group all covering the Red Cross work. Enrolling now will insure a place in this course.

"Canteen Corps, under Mrs. Wm. Coel, have been kept busy with most suppers, luncheons and teas but the corps must be enlarged to meet any problems arising from disasters, such as fires, sabotage and floods. Mobile Canteens would be the work of this corps.

"The surgical Dressing groups are meeting each morning, but Mrs. W. W. Duff, Chairman, asks for more women. With another quota of 50, 000 pieces given the Chapter more women are needed.

"With this review of the volunteer activities in the Lawrence County Chapter, one can realize the need for more women—I am hopeful many will enroll," so stated Mrs. Elliott.

OVER 5,000 STUDENTS TAKE PART IN HIGH SCHOOL FINALS HERE

bronze trophy and with Bellevue and Huntingdon high schools eyeing the trophy with equally envious eyes, New Castle senior high orchestra has some competition worthy of its best.

Youngsters Enjoy Ball
Friday night from nine till twelve the visiting students were guests at a ball in the Cathedral ball room. The huge ball room was packed to the walls with the dancing youngsters and they appeared to be having an enjoyable time. During the evening corsage bouquets were presented to the girls coming the farthest distance to the state contests. The corsages were awarded to the girls from Susquehanna high school, their distance from home being approximately 400 miles.

One of the interesting groups present for the contest is the Scotland School Boys' Chorus. This school is located at Scotland, Pa., east of Harrisburg and the thirty boys in the chorus are out for a grand slam in their class. They have won the boys' chorus honor the past two years and if they win today, they will be barred from further competition, that is the present group will be barred. The youngsters, who have been housed in the Joseph V. Cunningham Armory, are perfectly willing to forego further competition if they can hang up the grand slam.

Present Baton
An interesting sidelight on the contests took place Friday afternoon when Richard W. Grant, professor of music appreciation at Penn State was presented with an engraved baton in appreciation of his long service as a senior vocal adjudicator in league contests. The baton was presented by C. Stanton Belfour executive secretary of the league.

The top award of the contests is the place which goes to the school with the most honors and the most entrants. For obvious reasons the host school is not eligible for this honor. The decision on this winner is one that takes several days for the entire list of awards must be compiled and the ratings made. This award will not be made until about Tuesday of next week.

A number of schools are entered in a lot of the contests. Schools with persons or groups entered in six or more events include Brockway, 6; Clairton 8; Dale of Johnstown, 7; Dubois 12; East Stroudsburg 6; John Harris of Harrisburg, 9; Montrose 9; New Wilmington, 9; Oil City 15; Mount Union 7; Pottsville 6; Sharon 10; Warren 7; William Penn, Harrisburg 9.

The final competitions start this afternoon at three o'clock when the Class C bands, Class A mixed choruses, and the Class C mixed choruses compete. With these events out of the way the 14th annual contests of the Pennsylvania Forensic and Music League will close.

Well Handled
According to executive secretary Belfour, of the league, the New Castle meeting has been highly satisfactory. Facilities for the contests were more than ample, rooming accommodations were handled efficiently and the results of the contests show a wide spread of awards.

Just what city will be honored with the contests in 1942 is not public as yet. It will be an eastern city in all probabilities, several being under consideration just now. Cities east of the mountains that have had the contests include Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Sunbury, Pottsville and Norristown. In the west Pittsburgh has had the contests twice and this year New Castle. In the center of the state Altoona has had the contests twice.

The Pennsylvania Forensic and Music League is sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh with the approval and co-operation of the State Department of Public Instruction. The present meeting has been a successful one both from the standpoint of the sponsors and the citizens of New Castle.

When the state's champion debaters meet for forensic duels in 1942, their subject will be: "Resolved, That every able-bodied male citizen required to have one year of full-time military training before attaining the age of 21 years." A timely topic it will be.

A battery of swift typists made work easier when it came to housing the contest host. Eight courteous girls presiding over the keys at the housing registration desk were Betty Wilcox, Dolores O'Leary, Cecilia Capitulo, Amelia Marrese, Shirley Gaston, Dorothea McCreary and Anita Sacco and Kathryn Trick. The Greater New Castle Association staff supervised the work.

Last night's dance saw members of the New Castle board of education, the official host, circulating about the Cathedral ballroom. They were on hand along with New Castles in the United States should be welcome the visiting hundreds.

An auto crash at the senior high school mid-way during yesterday afternoon's events momentarily emptied the main lobby of the music crowds. As one, the throng moved outside to see what happened. The fact that a car overturned only made everyone more curious.

So anxious were friends of some of the contestants that they put telephone calls through from distant points to learn results. Just before last midnight one call came to The News from Erie. And the high school reported similar calls from many cities. Some of the calls came before the contests.

Silently but efficiently, New Castle Boy Scouts have been giving a helping hand to contest authorities and city police on several school fronts and at the Cathedral. That's always true of the scouts, though, any anyone who accept it as matter-of-fact. But the uniformed lad's courtesy will long be remembered by the visitors.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

IMMUNIZATION SAVING MANY LIVES BUT IT STILL HAS OPPONENTS.

Perhaps its because only those active in opposition express themselves on the subject, but I get an astonishingly large number of protests from parents over the desire of educational authorities to advance the immunization of children against the various diseases of childhood. Sometimes they come out against vaccinating for smallpox; sometimes it is the toxoid for diphtheria that draws down their wrath; sometimes they are opposed to all such operations.

Whenever I read such a letter, or talk to such a person, the thought always flashes through my mind: "I'll bet they are opposed to pasteurizing milk too." And I usually find that they are. They are consistent, anyway.

Vaccination for smallpox was discovered by Jenner 145 years ago, and every advance in its use has been accompanied by a reduction in the number of cases of the disease. Yet it still has its opponents. They are important because they are the same people trying to prevent children and adults from being given medical immunity against other diseases.

Immunity means the resistance of the human system to the infection of a contagious disease. Passive immunity is passed on to a baby from its mother. It is only a temporary immunity, however, and must be supplemented with an active resistance as soon as practical. Active immunity means the resistance resulting either from having the disease or contact with it, or from inoculations. Millions of lives have been saved by medical science through this knowledge.

One man I know was vaccinated as a child and his arm had become so infected that he nearly lost it by amputation. As a result of his experience, he refuses to have his children vaccinated.

A few years ago, vaccines weren't as pure as they are now, and these impurities sometimes gave the patient trouble. But generally the trouble was that the point of the vaccination became infected. The necessity of complete cleanliness wasn't appreciated fully then, and scarification was much greater than now.

When the operation was finished usually the sleeve of the undershirt was just pulled down over it. It isn't any wonder that some people had pretty serious reactions from such vaccinations. When I recall some of the vaccinations I saw old time doctors do, I marvel that there weren't more complications. I remember one who carried the instrument he used for the scarifying around in his pocket with his chewing tobacco!

Today vaccines and serums are highly purified. Instruments are sterile. Inoculations are not painful. And immunity is produced. There is no real cause for opposition.

Councils Meet In Pittsburgh

Thirteen In Local Delegation
To Salvation Army Young People's Meeting

Annual Young People's Councils for the Western Pennsylvania Division are being held this week-end at Pittsburgh. There's a local delegation of 13 attending these sessions of councils being held at the Salvation Army auditorium, 425 Boulevard of the Allies, Pittsburgh.

The councils are limited to young people between the ages of 15 and 30 years. Today there are group discussion periods for Sunday school teachers, Sunday school superintendents, prospective officers, sand-tray leaders, club leaders, Boy and Girl Scout leaders and the young people's advancement program.

During the evening service, there will be a grand musical program representing the various corps in this district. New Castle will be represented by a double trio composed of Marcella Ely, Elizabeth Brown, Joyce Gordon, June Chadbolt, Marie Love and William Chadbolt.

The Sunday services will include a morning consecration service and an afternoon dedication service. Principal speaker for the entire council will be Commissioner Alexander Damon from New York City. He will be assisted by his wife, Major Carey Hughes and Trigg and Adjutant K. Cooke. Chairman for the councils will be Major William Harris, divisional commander for this district.

UNION HIGH TO HONOR ATHLETES

uled For April 24—Denny
Schill Is Speaker

Denny Schill, secretary of the Ellwood City Chamber of Commerce, and well-known sportsman, has been secured as speaker for the annual athletic banquet to be held at Union High school on Thursday evening, April 24.

PARKED CARS HANDICAP
One of the biggest handicaps to sweeping streets at night is the parked car problem according to Street Commissioner W. G. Fleming. The sweeper on rainless nights, operates between midnight Tuesday and six a.m. Wednesday and the same hours on Friday.

It is said that 53 per cent of all accidents are injuries to the arm and hand.

AROUND CITY HALL

One week from today Boy Scouts will make their annual journey to city hall whether they will watch the city fathers at work. The mayor and council explain the inner workings to the future rulers of tomorrow.

Some years ago the city police department practiced shooting with revolvers. The range was in the cellar of the city hall. Harold Dunlap was the instructor.

George Kennedy, now a lieutenant of police, served as county detective and in every role in the city department excepting chief of police. He is a veteran member of the department and thoroughly knows the city and county.

Some of the men on the police department are versed in languages other than English. They are John Golis, George Sigler, Michael Fazzzone. Some of the other temporary officers also speak languages in addition to English. This is decidedly advantageous to police departments.

William Shaner, member of the police department, who underwent treatment in Aspinwall Veterans hospital is able to be around town meeting fellow citizens. Shaner faithfully served a long time in the department.

It will not be long until the drinking fountains in various parts of the city will serve thirsty persons. They are iced at the cost of the city when ever needed.

"Please keep off the diamond grass plots and flower beds" was the plea issued today by Owen Fox, city forester, who works day and night in an effort to enhance the beauty of the section.

North West Elks Meet Here Sunday

A business meeting at 2:30 and dinner at 6 with the New Castle lodge as host, will highlight the program.

There's a Roosevelt in a Boston firm that is capitalizing vanity. For ten bucks it will sell you a book which lists you as one of the Who's Who in your state.

Two Hundred Members Of Liberal Arts College Association Meet At Westminster

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, April 19.—"Approximately one hundred of the best books written since the dawn of civilization can well be the basis of a liberal arts education," Dean Scott Buchanan, dean of St. John's college, Annapolis, Maryland, told over 200 members of the association of liberal arts colleges of Western Pennsylvania, meeting at Westminster college today.

The basis of education at St. John's college, Dean Buchanan stressed, is a thorough study of the "best books," supplemented by other readings, lectures, and tutorial sections.

A democracy, according to the Eastern college dean, is obligated to educate all of its people in the insights and habits of preceding generations, so that each age can pass on to the next the best thinking of the past.

Colleges participating in the day's sessions were Allegheny, Bethany, Geneva, Grove City, Mount Mercy, PCW, Seton Hill, Thiel, Washington and Jefferson, Waynesburg, and Westminster.

On the executive committee for the association meeting were Dean A. C. Morrill, Geneva; Dean Maxwell R. Kelson, Westminster; Dean Marguerite Appleton, Grove City; and Dean L. T. Moston, Waynesburg.

Following Dr. R. F. Galbreath's welcoming address, the group broke up into sectional meetings, with Prof. L. S. Marshall, Westminster history head, in charge of the social sciences division.

Pirates Defeat Reds As Butcher Hurls Fine Game

Score Is 4 To 1 In Home
Opener At Pittsburgh,
Tigers Humble
Cleveland

CINCINNATI HAS LOST FOUR STRAIGHT

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, April 19.—What odds do you suppose a bookie would have given on the proposition that the world champion Reds would be the last team to win a game in the major leagues? Or that they would drop their first four games and that their big siege guns—Derringer, Vander Meer, Thompson and Walters—would all lose their first starts?

And yet today you will note that all those incredible things have happened.

Pirates Trip Reds.
Walters was 4-1 victim of the astonishing Pirates yesterday simply because he threw a couple of sopher balls. Van Robays clouted the first one and Vince DiMaggio, oldest of the three famous ball playing brothers in the majors—clouted the other with two aboard and that was the ball game.

Incidentally, who said Frankie Frisch had no pitchers? Two days ago Truett Sewell turned in a two-hitter for him and yesterday Max Butcher held the Reds to five.

Meanwhile, the Giants were grabbing their fourth straight decision by knocking off the Phils behind the steady pitching of Bob Bowman and the grand hitting of Mel Ott who walloped his first homer of the year with three aboard. The score was 7-2.

Dodgers Win One.
The Dodgers finally broke their losing streak by knocking off the Bees, 11-6, and Old Casey Stengel must have lost a few more hairs he can hardly spare as he watched his minions kick in with six errors. And the Cardinals suffered their first defeat, 6-4, at the hands of old Charley Root of the Cubs who is 41 years young.

That reminds us that two other 40-year-olds—Ten Lyons of the White Sox and Lefty Grove of the Red Sox—also gave two corking performances in their seasonal debuts.

Ted had little trouble taming the hard-hitting Browns, 7-2, and Lefty gave the Athletics only two hits in seven innings, although the 3-2 decision was credited to Herb Hash after Lefty was removed for a pinch-hitter.

Yankees Trimmed.
The Red Sox won this just as they did their previous games by staging ninth inning rallies. Bobby Doerr hit a homer in the seventh and then, after Manager Joe Cronin doubled in the ninth, Doerr hit another to win the ball game.

The Tigers made but six hits off Bagby and the Indians made the same number off Bridges and Benton but homers by Tigers Gehring and Tebbetts outweighed one by Keltner and so the Tigers won, 4-2.

The Yanks again fell victim to a lefthander when Ken Chase held them to eight hits while the supposedly weak-hitting Senators were massaging Russo, Chandler and Donald for 17 and an easy 7-4 verdict.

Titans-Rockets Even Stephen In Tennis And Golf

Westminster Cops Tennis Opener; Rockets Superb
On Links

Westminster and Slippery Rock broken even in tennis and golf on Friday afternoon.

The Rockets veteran golf team, with Fil Nocera and "Chinkie" Dutkin, New Castle athlete, right on top, trimmed the Titan links-men, 17½ to 15.

In tennis, Westminster was an easy 8 to 1 winner.

Results of golf matches played at Castle Hills:
Bukowski, Slippery Rock, defeated Stevens, 77 to 82.

Defazio, Slippery Rock, defeated Campbell, Westminster, 79 to 87.

Nocera, Slippery Rock, defeated McFarlane, 79 to 86.

Dutkin, Slippery Rock, defeated Roy, Westminster, 78 to 79.

Mosca, Slippery Rock, defeated Osoff, Westminster, 84 to 93.

Perkins, Slippery Rock, defeated Andrews, Westminster, 90 to 92.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS LAND

Don't overlook Whirlaway, the pride and joy of Warren Wright, when trying to pick the 1941 Kentucky Derby winner, because this big chestnut son of Blenheim II, out of Dustwhirl, is one whale of a horse despite his recent ups and downs, writes Clyde L. Reece for the I. N. S. Wright has shot the works for a Derby triumph for a long time, and Whirlaway may be answer—he had to be good to win seven races and come in the money in six others in 16 tries as a two-year-old. For his 1940 record, Whirlaway was tabbed the winter-broke favorite for the May 3 Bluegrass classic for $75,000 added, with Our Boots a close second. Then he started in Florida this year, and hit the skids in popularity because he took but one of three races. Then an injured foot hampered the big fellow, and more fans and bettors deserted him, and his top spot was taken by Our Boots. The bad foot caused Whirlaway to pass up the important $20,000 Flamingo Stakes, victory in which skyrocketed the derby chances of Dispose. But the big chestnut colt has a broad back and a tough chin. He took a back seat for awhile, felt his foot mend, and came back to capture two races—one in Florida and another at Keeneland, last week—to prove his blood is red, not really blue.

Reports afloat claim the reason Joe Louis has engaged in "a bum a month campaign" is because he is "land poor" and he will not feel satisfied unless he has had three fights this summer and they are proposed against Abe Simon, Buddy Baer and Billy Conn. Conn has raised a voice in protest against Bomlin Joe battling Simon and Baer. His manager, Johnny Ray, who has fought here (against Patsy Branigan in Humbert hall approximately 25 years ago) points out that Joe may be injured and then the Conn-Louis "go" will be delayed. Ray wants Conn to get the first whack at Louis, figuring that this will be a better money shot than Simon and Baer to cause Louis trouble.

Indications point to Russell Baxter some day being a light-heavyweight; that is, if he continues to grow. Right now the youngster weighs 160 and he is not yet out of high school. If Russell continues to assimilate fistic knowledge and doesn't meet with any serious setbacks he may turn out to be one of the best fighters the city has had. Incidentally, it might be stated that the Billy Reale-Tod Cole fight will be repeated Tuesday evening in the Shelby Social club, Ellwood City. Cole handed Billy a neat lacing in The Arena and this one fight ought to be worth the attention of Ellwood City fandom.

H. E. Foreman, Jr., of Chicago, won the annual Mason and Dixon golf tourney at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., by beating Lieutenant Al Dollins of the Army Coast Artillery, 3-2, in the 36-hole grind. . . . Hank Greenberg, outfielder for the Detroit Tigers, has been placed in a 1-A classification by a Detroit service board. His salary for this season would have been $50,000, according to reports. Cecil Travis, Washington shortstop, has also been placed in Class 1-A. . . . Gunnar Barlund has brought suit against the Illinois Athletic Commission to obtain $2,955.50, he claims is due for his fight in Chicago with Billy Conn. His manager terminated the fight because of a gash above an eye. The commission fined the fighter his purse then suspended both he and his manager.

DEAN, AUKER GOOD ON OPENING DAY

Eldon Auker, St. Louis Browns peger, and "Chubby" Dean, flinger for the Philadelphia Athletics, are consistent twirlers—on opening day. A year ago Auker outpitched the mighty "Bobo" Newsum of Detroit, and "Chubby" handcuffed the New York Yankees. The pair did the same thing this season.

Seeks Title as Car Hop Queen

Blonde, blue-eyed Josephine Powell, 19-year-old Houston beauty, is a contestant in the first annual Car Hop Queen contest in Galveston, Tex. Entries will be judged on beauty, costume and ability in taking and filling orders at drive-in food stands.

Fritz Zivic Loses To Kaplan

(International News Service)
BOSTON, April 19.—Mike Kaplan, stylish gladiator from Boston, today was the leading contender for the world's welterweight crown held by Fritz Zivic after winning a unanimous decision from the Pittsburgh titleholder in a 10-round non-title bout at Boston Garden.

His left hand working like magic, Kaplan punched his way to victory after Zivic engineered an early lead. The International News Service score card gave Kaplan five rounds, Zivic three, and two even. Zivic, undefeated since he snared the crown from Henry Armstrong, appeared an easy winner as he built up a comfortable lead in the early rounds, but Kaplan finished strong to win the decision.

The fight, which attracted 9,092 persons, grossed $16,544.50.

Six Players Join 100 Homers Club

That select organization of the majors—the 100 homers or more club—was increased by the addition of six new members in 1940. Johnny Mize, the steel-shouldered St. Louis Cardinal game buster, was the only National leaguer to enter the circle. The remaining five—Rudy York, George Selkirk, Pinky Higgins, Gerald Walker and Joey Kuhel—were American leaguers.

FOUR 1935 HANDS STILL WITH TIGERS.

Only four members of the 1935 championship aggregation are listed on the Detroit Tigers' roster. "Hank" Greenberg, Charley Gehringer, Lynwood Rowe and Tommy Bridges form the quartet. Ervin "Pete" Fox, the fifth member, was peddled to the Boston Red Sox during the winter season.

SONNY HORNE ON APRIL 28 CARD

Takes On Billy Irwin And Baxter Will Oppose Burskovitch

Jefferson A. C. fistic card arranged for one week from Monday night is one of the best scheduled in some time. On the card the fans will see Sonny Horne, heavy-hitting welterweight from Niles against Billy Irwin of McKeesport, who is reputedly one of the better class of 147-pounders in the Pittsburgh area. The entire card, which includes Russell Baxter, follows:

Sonny Horne, Niles vs. Billy Irwin, McKeesport; 147.

Russell Baxter, city, vs. Mike Burskovitch, Youngstown, G. G. champion; 160.

Rollin Horne, Niles vs. Leo Seahorne, McKeesport, former half back; 135.

Charlie Arnett, West Pittsburg vs. Nick Delmark, Youngstown; 150.

Roy Crews, Ellwood City vs. Pete Misto, Campbell; 147.

Bunny Miste, Campbell vs. Melio Donnell, Youngstown, G. G. champion; 135.

Tony Karkido, Youngstown, vs. Frank Cordey, Niles, 126.

Tony Arnett, Ellwood City, vs. Benito Cantone, McKeesport, 120 lbs.

New Castle Rifle Club Wins Match

The New Castle Rifle club won its final match of the year in the Penn-Ohio league last night from Columbiana at the Columbiana range 948 to 922. High man for the match was McGinnis with a 194 string.

New Castle and McDonald are to have a championship shoot-off in the near future, the locals having won the first-half of the league schedule and McDonald the second-half. The place for the championship match and the date will be set by the league heads.

Results last night: New Castle, McGinnis 194, Finley 191, Hammond 188, Wally Bowers 188, Hockenberry 187—Total 948. Other New Castle strings: J. Williams 189, C. Johns 183, Kilbreath 179, Parsons 184, Treva Bowers 166.

Columbiana: Merriott 189, Harold 188, Printz 185, Moore 183, Miller 177—Total 922. Other Columbiana strings: Dowd 163, Shattuck 174, Mason 170, Petrick 167, Ward 143, Unger 156.

Ival Goodman, Cincy's fleet-footed outfielder, who broke his way into the majors a few campaigns back, is on his way to joining the 100 homer club.

Goodman already has pumped out 90 homers.

OFF THE FIELD—Jimmy Foxx, slugging Red Sox first baseman, chats with Gen. M. A. Camacho, brother of the Mexican president.

Saturday sports notes collected on the run:

Al Hook, an east sider, will get the nod from Coach Moore to cavort around third base for the Muskingum college sandlotters in the lid-lifter against Ohio Wesleyan this afternoon in New Concord, O. den of the Muskies. Playing his first season of varsity ball in his sophomore year, the Beckford street athlete covers the hot corner with great ecst. Melvin Moorhouse, the Muskies' tub beater, reports.

The column's sympathies are extended to Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh whose 82-year-old mother, Mrs. Catherine Bridenbaugh, Martinsburg, Pa., passed away several days ago. To New Castle's young Izak Walms: Are you ciling your reels for next Saturday's fishing contest? The committee reports a large entry list. Valuable prizes will be awarded to the lads who come back with the tallest trout, brown and rainbow, and for the boys who nab the biggest catch.

Swapped baseball views with Jack J. Dunlevy, major domo of the Butler Yankees, Friday. The genial diamond man underwent an operation for a fractured nose in Jameson Memorial hospital several weeks ago and reports here several times a week for treatment. Dunlevy sustained the injury in a football game many years ago. Jack is mending rapidly and expects to be in tip top form by the time his Yanks lineup for the perennial Penn State championship series.

Dunlevy inquired about Paul Minner. When informed that the New Wilmington slugger has been in a Knoxville uniform for more than a month, the executive was surprised. Like a number of other ivory hunters, Dunlevy was hot on the trail of Minner. The Butte figure the Yanks had a better than fair chance of acquiring the towering localite. Scratching Minner's name from his book, Jack remarked: "Well, there goes another hot prospect."

Baseball now boasts of four pitching Deans, Paul, Chubby, Jerome and Jimmy. They play with the Giants, Athletics, Cubs and Washington, respectively. . . . Counting Thursday's victory, Al Smith now owns five straights over the Chicago White Sox, since the 1940 semester. Smith has culminated the Dykesmen twice. . . . From what we hear, the New York Yankees look Priddy good at second.

Chief center of discussion concerned the water snake. Figures show that a pair of snakes will consume as many as 1,110 fish in a year's time. As many as 14 fish have been found in the stomachs of these pests. It was revealed.

To combat this fishermen's enemy, plans were launched for a "Water Snake Day," on Saturday, May 10. Every fisherman who has some leisure time is asked to lend a helping hand. Boy Scouts will be asked to participate. A scout killing 10 water snakes will receive a junior warden merit badge from the state for his services.

Sportsmen and scoutmasters will transport scouts to county streams. The council is asking everyone to get behind the blitzkrieg on the water snake.

HARRIS OKAYS
HIS OUTFIELD

Manager Bucky Harris of the Washington Senators has stamped an O. K. on his outfield. With Roger Cramer, Ben Chapman and George Case manning the outer gardens, Harris figures the Senators boast of one of the fastest fly-shagging brigades in the majors. Sammy West and Johnny Weja are "fill-ins."

Lloyd Waner is the only Pittsburgh Pirate who was a member of the pennant-winning crew of 1927.

FROM ME TO YOU
By MESEEAII

The weather is just dandy for the contestants of the Pennsylvania Forensic and Music League . . . the various contests have gone very fine so far . . . last night a record crowd of boys and girls attended the dance held in their honor at the Cathedral . . . Asa Hoffmaster, principal of the North Street and Croton Schools was chairman of this event. He and his committee are reported to have done a very fine job in arranging this event. The money for the dance was furnished by the Music Council . . . and a lot of our townspeople help put up that money when you attend the City-County Basket Ball tournament last month. We hope that when these contestants go back home they will be able to say, New Castle is a great place, let's take our families back there on a short trip this summer.

Unsung heroes of this Contest are the people who furnish meals for this large group . . . here is an example of what happened yesterday at the George Washington Junior Senior High school Cafeteria . . . and it will be done again today . . . Nine women yesterday served 4,885 nickel servings of food . . . this included 600 bottles of milk, 450 bottles of orange and 150 bottles of pop. This was only one place where meals were served . . . but any way you look at it . . . that is a pile of grub. One man made change for this entire amount . . . he was a volunteer and the only volunteer from both George Washington and Ben Franklin schools. We think the women from the Cafeterias of these two schools deserve a lot of credit for this fine work . . . as we said before, they will do the same again today and this evening they will serve 430 dinners. Things like this make Contests like we are entertaining successful.

Mrs. Nelson of the Senior High School has been plenty busy too . . . her staff had the job of finding homes for the boys and girls . . . the ones that came earlier than expected . . . registration of contestants . . . answering questions about this and that. And in general seeing that the contest ran smoothly. Mrs. Nelson's husband, "Scoots", says that he is sure has been reducing this week. But all kidding aside . . . may we take this opportunity to congratulate each and every worker on this contest for their splendid cooperation.

Stock Market
Trend Is DownFew Strong Spots Develop
During Trading Of Morning In Market

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, April 19.—The stock market slipped into new low ground for the year today. Scattered liquidation was evident as a result of the critical position of the Allies in Greece and the unsettling developments at home.

The majority of price changes was small.

U. S. Steel broke the 50-level for the first time since last July.

Other leaders to set new lows for the year were General Motors, Chrysler, Studebaker, Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Goodrich, Boeing, Lockheed, United Aircraft, Loew's, Fajardo, South Porto Rico Sugar, Chesapeake & Ohio, N. Y. Central, American Car & Foundry, American Locomotive, American Water Works and Public Service of N. J.

Cerro de Pasco lost a point in copper.

There were a few strong spots. Allied Chemical gained over a point. Standard Oil of N. J. was up fractionally. American Telephone and Westinghouse were steady.

U. S. governments were again firm in the bond market but the rest of the list eased.
